PROPOSED HIGHER SUGAR TARIFF STIRS U. S.

SUGAR BATTLE TO BE OUTSTAND-ING CONTEST OF TARIFF FIGHT

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, June 26. — Sugar growers and manufacturers, extract flavorers, Porto Ricans, Philippine delegates and nearly everyone interested in sugar except housewives appeared before the senate finance sub-committee today at the opening of the contest over the proposed three cents a pound world sugar rates—as compared with the present world rate of 2.20 cents a pound.

The formidable list of witnesses appealing for a chance to be heard gave further indications that the sugar battle is to be the outstanding contest of the tariff fight.

For weeks, newspaper offices in Washington have filled their waste baskets with reams of propaganda circulated by apparently well-financed organizations. The bulk of this material has been furnished by those in favor of a lower rate, including Americans interested in Cuban production, carbonated beverage bottlers and chocolate manufacturers.

Most of these organizations are seeking an opportunity to be heard in the senate sub-committee, although Chairman Reed Smoot has announced the hearings would not duplicate those of the house ways and means committee.

Behind the scenes there is considerable discussion about modifying the house three cent sugar provision with a sliding scale, proposing a high duty when sugar prices are low in the United States and a low duty when they are high, thus stabilizing the price to the consumer. This compromise is said to be acceptable to President Hoover.

There is as yet no concerted movement among any group of senators, although the so-called independent group of midwesterners has selected Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin to collect all possible data regarding the sugar situation in preparation for a fight on the floor.

Washington, June 26. — Former Secretary of Agriculture Jardine today urged the senate finance committee to adopt the disputed three cent duty on sugar provided in the house tariff bill.

Jardine said it is "sound policy" to maintain the production of sugar in the United States and asserted that if the domestic sugar industry is properly protected it can be extended to supply virtually all of the nation's sugar needs.

A still higher tariff on sugar than the house bill provides was urged by W. R. Ogg, of the American Farm Bureau Federation. He recommended a tariff of 3.91 instead of three cents a pound.

NO KNEE BREECHES FOR ENVOY DAWES

London, June 26.—(UP)—United States Ambassador Charles G. Dawes will not wear knee breeches at British ceremonial affairs, including his presentation at court tonight.

An official of the American embassy said today that Dawes had been given special permission to wear trousers instead of the customary ambassadorial black breeches.

Custom decrees that the ambassadors wear breeches of similar cloth to the evening coat.

CHILD 14 MONTHS

Mrs. Valirie believed her husband was in this country.

ONE KILLED IN

By FOSTER EATON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Louis, Mo., June 26.—(UP)—There was much comment in "wet" St. Louis today about the apparent rebellion of the March federal grand jury against the drastic Jones law.

One unnamed grand juror told the St. Louis Star:

"I would not indict a man for selling liquor if that meant he must go to the penitentiary, and that's the way all the rest of this jury felt about it. See the rest of the boys; they'll tell you the same thing."

Another told the St. Louis Post-Dispatch:

"It's a hell of a situation where you go out and take a drink—if you can find one—and then sit down and indict the guy that sold it to you."

In its final report, submitted late yesterday, the jury returned six indictments, including five bar-tenders and one manufacturer of alcohol, all of whom were said to have made previous confessions of guilt.

Only 12 cases under the Jones law were submitted to the March jury, although at the outset of its deliberations six weeks ago Assistant United States District Attorney Arthur E. Hapke announced 25 cases under that law would be submitted.

Since the law went into effect, some 300 cases have been "worked up" here by prohibition agents, and a majority of them were said to come under the provisions of the Jones law.

The Post-Dispatch reported it had learned from still another grand juror that the body "quarreled over the application of this law," and that finally it asked the district attorney to submit no more cases under it.

SPEED RECORD IS OKLAHOMA CITY

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 26.—(UP)—A speed record in justice was set in a court here today when Charles Haddock, 23, was sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary before his robbery victims knew he had been robbed.

Haddock admitted burglarizing the home of F. H. Kraft at 2:30 P. M. yesterday when arrested soon after the robbery.

By 4:45 he had pleaded guilty and was sentenced. At 5 o'clock Kraft found his home had been robbed.

"EMPLOYING CONVICTED MEN IN LABOR THAT WOULD BENEFIT ALL"

St. Paul, June 26.—(UP)—Federal Judge John B. Sanborn, who in recent years has occupied the bench in hundreds of liquor law trials, today suggested that prohibition enforcement would be more effectual if the offenders were sentenced to actual labor rather than to "pinochle."

"I believe considerable advance has been made in the enforcement of dry laws," the veteran jurist said, "but I believe more rapid progress could be made and the ends of justice and humanity better served by employment of convicted men in labor that would be of benefit to all."

"If the federal government would buy a tract of say 10,000 or 20,000 acres of northern Minnesota cut-over lands for reforestation experimental purposes convicted bootleggers might be profitably employed in grubbing as well as in planting trees instead of idling their time away at Leavenworth."

"The state of Minnesota owns hundreds of thousands of acres of lands suitable for reforestation. Prisoners now sent to county jails to play pinochle for three to six months might well be sent to stockades in the cut-over country, live wholesomely in log cabins and do work that will repay the state hundred-fold in the days to come."

Judge Sanborn said he did not expect anything would come of his suggestion and then advanced as his reason "this idea is probably too sane and sensible to be appreciated or to be acted upon."

MAY McAVOY TO MARRY RICH BROKER

Repairs were completed on the big plane Sverige after a mechanic arrived Monday from Germany. Several flights yesterday were successful.

Capt. Ahrenberg will fly from here to Lyngby, Greenland, where another landing for fuel will be made. From Lyngby, his route leads him to Anticosti Island and thence to New York.

Leut. Axel Floden and Robert Ljungland are accompanying Capt. Ahrenberg on the flight.

ANN LIVINGSTON SUES MILLION-AIRE FOR BREACH OF

Chicago, June 26.—(UP)—Ann Livingston's story of her shattered romance with Franklin S. Hardinge, oil burner manufacturer, neared its climax today.

The 29-year-old Oklahoma beauty, resuming the witness stand in her $250,000 breach of promise suit against the 61-year-old millionaire, who two years ago sought her hand, was to explain the "final break."

Miss Livingston was slated to relate, before a packed court room where even standing room was at a premium, her refusal to sign a prenuptial contract in which she was to waive any claim against Hardinge's estate for $100,000 in cash.

Her failure to "sign on the dotted line," her attorneys contended, so angered Hardinge that he called off the nuptials, even after he engaged the minister and sent out the invitations.

Defense counsel indicated they would endeavor to prove Miss Livingston was a "gold digger" who desired to marry the furnace appliance magnate for his money alone.

They intended to show, they said, that Miss Livingston contracted thousands of dollars in bills at Chicago stores while the guest of her middle-aged Lothario and that her protestations of love were false.

SCHREIBER, YOUNG

IN AMERICA AGAIN

RELUCTANT TO TALK ABOUT EX-PERIENCES ON YELLOW
BIRD

MET BY FATHER AT NEW YORK, LITTLE INTEREST PAID TO BOY'S ENTRY

New York, June 26.—(UP)—Arthur Schreiber, the Portland, Me., boy who stowed away on the French trans-Atlantic plane Yellow Bird two weeks ago, returned to America on the Leviathan today.

He was met at Quarantine Island by his father, Thomas R. Schreiber, Portland furrier, who seemed somewhat prouder of his son than the boy did of himself.

The father was a bit disgruntled over the fact that he encountered difficulty getting a cutter, which, he said, was an unwarranted lack of interest on the part of customs officials.

Young Schreiber was reluctant to talk of his venture. He said he wished nothing so much as to be alone with his mother, who remained at home in Portland, and denied that he felt himself a hero or that he ever had compared himself with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Asked if he intended to capitalize his experience, he replied, "That all depends on my mother. I must consult her first. I have no business agent."

"Oh, yes, I'm your business agent," his father interjected.

The son paid little attention to the remark and requested that he be asked no more questions.

He will go to Portland as soon as he can, possibly today, he said. He was emphatic in denying he had stowed away with the connivance of any of the three Frenchmen with whom he made the trip from Old Orchard, Me., to Spain.

CAPT. HAWKS PLANS
ROUND TRIP N. Y.
TO LOS ANGELES

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 26.—(UP)—Captain Frank Hawks, who plans to start tomorrow on a round trip flight to Los Angeles, went over final plans today.

He installed a small radio in his Lockheed-Vega monoplane by which he intends to pick up weather reports. He also helped install a barograph.

Hawks plans to leave at 4 a. m., fly to Los Angeles without a stop, rest there for a few hours, then make a return non-stop flight to New York.

DRINK-CRAZED
MAN FIRES FIVE SHOTS IN CHURCH

Chicago, June 26.—(UP)—Five hundred communicants at mass in a large west side Catholic church were thrown into a panic today when a drink-crazed man invaded the sanctuary and fired five shots, wounding one parishioner kneeling at the altar rail.

The invader then attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself in the head but was only slightly wounded.

7 PASSENGERS AND YOUTHFUL STEWARD RECOVERING FROM INJURIES

PILOT GAVE HIS LIFE TO SAVE PASSENGERS ON THE PLANE

St. Paul, June 26.—(UP)—Motor trouble of unknown origin was definitely assigned today as the cause for the crash near municipal airport late Monday of a Northwest Airways air liner with the accompanying death of the pilot and serious injury of 13 persons.

The seven passengers and youthful steward aboard the plane today were reported slowly recovering from their injuries at St. Paul hospitals. Five persons injured in rescue work after the crash were also reported improved.

The investigation placing responsibility for the crash on motor trouble was headed by F. H. Longeway, aircraft inspector of the United States department of commerce, and Charles W. Holman, operating manager of Northwest Airways.

Their report said the crash came after all three motors of the plane went dead shortly after the plane took off from the airport here for Wold-Chamberlain Field, Minneapolis. The cause for failure of the motors will probably never be known as the only person able to give definite information—the pilot—was killed.

Holman declared the motors probably were stopped by either ignition or fuel trouble. He said no evidence of either could be obtained from the burned plane.

Holman paid tribute to Edwin Middagh, pilot of the plane, with the statement that "Eddie went down with his ship like a good pilot should."

Observers of the wreck and passengers of the plane said Middagh evidently pointed the nose of the Ford plane downward, taking the full force of the crash himself instead of "pancaking" the plane and allowing the passengers to take the risks.

Bobby Johnson, 17-year-old steward of the plane, who was one of the first in starting rescue work, also was lauded as a hero in the wreck.

TACNA-ARICA PROBLEM

Santiago, Chile, June 26.—(UP)—The commission report on the recently concluded treaty between Chile and Peru in settlement of the long-standing Tacna-Arica problem reached the chamber of deputies today for final discussion before ultimate ratification. SPAIN MARSHALS
NAVAL, AERIAL
RESOURCES TODAY

GREAT BRITAIN, ITALY, PORTU-GAL, FRANCE SEND OUT
DESTROYERS

SCOPE OF SEARCH HAS NOW BEEN GREATLY
WIDENED

Madrid, June 26.—(UP)—Five European governments joined today in the elaborate search for the missing Spanish aviators.

In addition to the naval and aerial resources of Spain which have been marshalled for the hunt, Great Britain, Italy and Portugal sent out fast destroyers to search the waters of the Atlantic between the coast of Portugal and the Azores. The fliers were believed to have come down somewhere in that area in their huge Dornier seaplane while on an attempt to fly to the United States.

Today the French government ordered two of its destroyers, the Leopold and the Lynx, to join in the search. It was announced here that the French naval ministry has put at the disposition of the Spanish government those destroyers.

The scope of the search was widened today as the officials of the Spanish government continued to cling to the slender hope that Commander Ramon Franco and his three flight companions on the missing seaplane would be found.

Scores of ships and seaplanes cruised the area in which the fliers were believed to have come down in their plane.

The government wireless stations, as well as the private receiving stations, stood by in the hope of picking up information which might lead to the recovery of the plane.

The remote possibility that the airmen might have been picked up by a slow vessel without wireless apparatus gave the officials a straw of hope to cling to.

There was little stock taken in the varying and unconfirmed reports that the wreckage of the plane had been sighted at sea.

London, June 26.—The captain of the British steamer Gredlon informed the United Press by wireless from Gibraltar today that no wreckage of a seaplane had been sighted from his ship, as reported.

According to recent reports the Gredlon was said to have sighted what was believed to have been the missing Spanish seaplane in which Commander Ramon Franco and his companions were lost in the Atlantic while attempting a flight to the United States.

The captain said that he merely had heard an aircraft engine, apparently functioning well.

Reports from the British aircraft carrier Eagle, dispatched to the Azores to aid in the search for the airmen, stated that so far nothing had been sighted of the missing seaplane.

Lisbon, Portugal, June 26.—The Spanish hydroplane Dornier No. 14, carrying a Portuguese officer as passenger, left the river Tagus at 11 A. M. today to search 10 hours for the missing Spanish fliers.

Drowns Self, Separated

Kenosha, Wis., June 26.—(UP)—A cablegram arrived in Kenosha addressed to Fred Barsi and the telegraph company started a search for Barsi, to carry him news that his wife and daughter are en route to America from Italy, to be with him.

The telegraph company's search ended at a park lagoon, where Barsi's body was found. He had committed suicide apparently, although no reason for the act could be learned.

Barsi had been separated from his family for 20 years. They are unaware of his death.

New Roll Collar Uniforms

"I would not indict a man for selling liquor if that meant he must go to the penitentiary, and that's the way all the rest of this jury felt about it. See the rest of the boys; they'll tell you the same thing."

St. Paul, June 26. —(UP)—Federal Judge John B. Sanborn, who in recent years has occupied the bench in hundreds of liquor law trials, today suggested that prohibition enforcement would be more effectual if the offenders were sentenced to actual labor rather than to "pinochle."

"I believe considerable advance has been made in the enforcement of dry laws," the veteran jurist said, "but I believe more rapid progress could be made and the ends of justice and humanity better served by employment of convicted men in labor that would be of benefit to all."

TO LOS ANGELES

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 26. —(UP)—Captain Frank Hawks, who plans to start tomorrow on a round trip flight to Los Angeles, went over final plans today.

He installed a small radio in his Lockheed-Vega monoplane by which he intends to pick up weather reports. He also helped install a barograph.

Hawks plans to leave at 4 a. m., fly to Los Angeles without a stop, rest there for a few hours, then make a return non-stop flight to New York.

DRINK-CRAZED

SHOTS IN CHURCH

The invader then attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself in the head but was only slightly wounded.

MOTOR TROUBLE
GIVEN AS CAUSE OF PLANE WRECK

7 PASSENGERS AND YOUTHFUL STEWARD RECOVERING FROM INJURIES

PILOT GAVE HIS LIFE TO SAVE
PASSENGERS ON THE PLANE

St. Paul, June 26. —(UP)—Motor trouble of unknown origin was definitely assigned today as the cause for the crash near municipal airport late Monday of a Northwest Airways airliner with the accompanying death of the pilot and serious injury of 13 persons.

The seven passengers and youthful steward aboard the plane today were reported slowly recovering from their injuries at St. Paul hospitals. Five persons injured in rescue work after the crash were also reported improved.

The investigation placing responsibility for the crash on motor trouble was headed by F. H. Longeway, aircraft inspector of the United States department of commerce, and Charles W. Holman, operating manager of Northwest Airways.

Their report said the crash came after all three motors of the plane went dead shortly after the plane took off from the airport here for Wold-Chamberlain Field, Minneapolis. The cause for failure of the motors will probably never be known as the only person able to give definite information — the pilot — was killed.

Holman declared the motors probably were stopped by either ignition or fuel trouble. He said no evidence of either could be obtained from the burned plane.

Holman paid tribute to Edwin Middagh, pilot of the plane, with the statement that "Eddie went down with his ship like a good pilot should."

Observers of the wreck and passengers of the plane said Middagh evidently pointed the nose of the Ford plane downward, taking the full force of the crash himself instead of "pancaking" the plane and allowing the passengers to take the risks.

Bobby Johnson, 17-year-old steward of the plane, who was one of the first in starting rescue work, also was lauded as a hero in the wreck.

SPAIN MARSHALS
NAVAL, AERIAL
RESOURCES TODAY

GREAT BRITAIN, ITALY, PORTU-GAL, FRANCE SEND OUT
DESTROYERS

BEEN GREATLY
WIDENED

Madrid, June 26. —(UP)—Five European governments joined today in the elaborate search for the missing Spanish aviators.

In addition to the naval and aerial resources of Spain which have been marshalled for the hunt, Great Britain, Italy and Portugal sent out fast destroyers to search the waters of the Atlantic between the coast of Portugal and the Azores. The fliers were believed to have come down somewhere in that area in their huge Dornier seaplane while on an attempt to fly to the United States.

Today the French government ordered two of its destroyers, the Leopold and the Lynx, to join in the search. It was announced here that the French naval ministry has put at the disposition of the Spanish government those destroyers.

The scope of the search was widened today as the officials of the Spanish government continued to cling to the slender hope that Commander Ramon Franco and his three flight companions on the missing seaplane would be found.

Scores of ships and seaplanes cruised the area in which the fliers were believed to have come down in their plane.

The government wireless stations, as well as the private receiving stations, stood by in the hope of picking up information which might lead to the recovery of the plane.

The remote possibility that the airmen might have been picked up by a slow vessel without wireless apparatus gave the officials a straw of hope to cling to.

There was little stock taken in the varying and unconfirmed reports that the wreckage of the plane had been sighted at sea.

London, June 26. —The captain of the British steamer Gredlon informed the United Press by wireless from Gibraltar today that no wreckage of a seaplane had been sighted from his ship, as reported.

According to recent reports the Gredlon was said to have sighted what was believed to have been the missing Spanish seaplane in which Commander Ramon Franco and his companions were lost in the Atlantic while attempting a flight to the United States.

The captain said that he merely had heard an aircraft engine, apparently functioning well.

Reports from the British aircraft carrier Eagle, dispatched to the Azores to aid in the search for the airmen, stated that so far nothing had been sighted of the missing seaplane.

Lisbon, Portugal, June 26. — The Spanish hydroplane Dornier No. 14, carrying a Portuguese officer as passenger, left the river Tagus at 11 A. M. today to search 10 hours for the missing Spanish fliers.

Drowns Self, Separated
Twenty Years From Family Seeking Him

Kenosha, Wis., June 26. —(UP)—A cablegram arrived in Kenosha addressed to Fred Barsi and the telegraph company started a search for Barsi, to carry him news that his wife and daughter are en route to America from Italy, to be with him.

The telegraph company's search ended at a park lagoon, where Barsi's body was found. He had committed suicide apparently, although no reason for the act could be learned.

Barsi had been separated from his family for 20 years. They are unaware of his death.

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF FIRST CIRCUIT CHAUTAUQUA STARTED IN 1904

Twenty-five years ago this summer Keith Vawter launched the first circuit Chautauqua the world ever saw. Mr. Vawter, who was conducting a Lyceum booking bureau and selling talent to the independent Chautauquas, had gained a close knowledge of the growing difficulties of securing talent and the economic waste entailed in operating under the independent plan. In 1904 fifteen towns combined to use a uniform service and equipment. The Chautauqua this year is the 1929 session of the circuit founded by Mr. Vawter in 1904.

The past quarter of a century has seen many improvements in the service and programs. Special tents were designed, special advertising and each year has seen the system enlarged and brought up to the times. A comparative study of the talent throughout the years will reveal a steadily unfolding purpose of enlightenment and adventure in a great variety of human interests. And every step has been constructive, designed to make the world better, life fuller and happier, and human effort more worth while.

The pioneer program included three musical attractions appearing six times in three days, lectures, entertainers, a juggler, artist, and a magician. Each company stayed in the towns for three days, appearing each day.

None of the physical equipment was furnished by the bureau. The season of 1910 saw the introduction of the true idea of program arrangement and delivery.

The Chautauqua circuits have been a big factor in democratizing music, bringing to the masses, musicians of accomplishment and standing. It has introduced the best in the drama and high grade comedies. "Progressivism," not only in politics, but in many lines of thought, has felt the impact of strong minds battling against fossiled notions from the platform.

There is no disputing the fact that great changes have been brought about within the lifetime of the circuit Chautauqua.

During the season of 1929 circuit Chautauquas will visit several thousand towns and cities in the United States and Canada and will be attended by more than ten million people.

The Associated Chautauquas, of which the Redpath-Vawter and Redpath-Horner circuits are members, have made an exhaustive search for such features as are capable of the necessary contributions to the Chautauqua program and a careful study of its numbers will convince the most critical that it represents the most advance step in program building yet attempted.

Camp Clearwater went into full-time activity yesterday. The boys were up at 6:45 a. m. eager for the affairs of the day to begin. The weather was cold, and few took the morning dip. It is not compulsory that any do so, but scouts are at liberty to snap out of their sleepiness

in that way if they wish.

After breakfast the process of earning honors began. Several scouts gathered plants, tagged them and reported to the officer-in-charge. Other boys began working on a handicraft project. Names will be given later in the week.

From 10 to 11 o'clock Director S.
C. Bakken gave the whole camp group instruction in the Indian sign language. The boys were eager to learn the system and appeared to be progressing rapidly.

Also, each scout was given the opportunity to learn how to make a necktie slide. The idea took well with the boys, and it is assumed that during the next few days and weeks they will be proudly displaying their creations.

Swimming was not very popular today. The air was chilly and although several went in the water few remained for the full time permitted by the camp program. There are two swimming periods each day,
the morning hour is for instructional purposes; the afternoon period for pleasure principally.

From 2 until 4 o'clock a kittenball game was staged between the Wipplefeathers and the Lollypops. Batteries for the former were O. Bakken and M. Magoffin; for the latter S.
Bakken and D. Garceau. Owing to better pitching and greater batting ability the Lollypops won the seven inning fracas, 17-9. Another game will be played tomorrow. All the boys in camp participated.

A horseshoe court has been provided and talent along this line is being disclosed and developed. Interest in the game is fairly widespread.

Meal time is always a keen feature of any camp. Breakfast, dinner and supper are thoroughly satisfying and pleasant for Clearwater scouts. Mrs.
Nelson sure can cook and the boys who serve do so with readiness and good will. Yells and songs put pep into the gang, and leave everybody gay and happy. Field Executive Bakken is a very able song leader.

The hospitality of the camp was extended to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bakken and daughter Hope of Brainerd, and the Misses Edith and Agnes Iavig of Pequot. We were very glad to have them visit camp. May they come again, and others also.

A campfire and story fest concluded the activities of the day. Tomorrow night each patrol is responsible for an interesting feature on the camp fire program. We anticipate a rip-roaring good time.

WHAT YOU EXPECT OF CHRYSLER

The imposing succession of Chrysler accomplishments has led the public instinctively to expect more of Chrysler than of other cars—and it is the completeness with which Chrysler fulfills these higher expectations that explains the ever-rising tide of Chrysler success.

You expect of Chrysler a charming individuality in style, and you get it.
You expect a livelier and more thrilling spirit of performance, and you get it.
You expect a more luxurious feeling of cradled comfort, and you get it. You expect a greater sum total of actual value in Chrysler, and you find it.

Chrysler today exerts a tremendous influence over the entire industry—and justifiably. In the five years of its meteoric rise, Chrysler has done more than any other force in the automobile world to revolutionize and modernize motor car standards.

That is the reason why the volume of Chrysler sales has increased to such mighty proportions—and why Chrysler

Also, each scout was given the opportunity to learn how to make a neckerchief slide. The idea took big with the boys, and it is assumed that during the next few days and weeks they will be proudly displaying their creations.

Swimming was not very popular today. The air was chilly and although several went in the water few remained for the full time permitted by the camp program. There are two swimming periods each day, the morning hour is for instructional purposes; the afternoon period for pleasure principally.

From 2 until 4 o'clock a kittenball game was staged between the Wipplefeathers and the Lollypops. Batteries for the former were O. Bakken and M. Magoffin; for the latter S. Bakken and D. Garceau. Owing to better pitching and greater batting ability the Lollypops won the seven inning fracas, 17-9. Another game will be played tomorrow. All the boys in camp participated.

A horseshoe court has been provided and talent along this line is being disclosed and developed. Interest in the game is fairly widespread.

Meal time is always a keen feature of any camp. Breakfast, dinner and supper are thoroughly satisfying and pleasant for Clearwater scouts. Mrs. Nelson sure can cook and the boys who serve do so with readiness and good will. Yells and songs put pep into the gang, and leave everybody gay and happy. Field Executive Bakken is a very able song leader.

The hospitality of the camp was extended to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bakken and daughter Hope of Brainerd, and the Misses Edith and Agnes Davig of Pequot. We were very glad to have them visit camp. May they come again, and others also.

A campfire and story fest concluded the activities of the day. Tomorrow night each patrol is responsible for an interesting feature on the camp fire program. We anticipate a rip-roaring good time.

A NEW KIND OF CAR THEN—A NEW KIND OF CAR NOW

" + + the Chrysler is a new type of motor car, which holds entirely novel sensations for every motorist. + + The fact is, that Chrysler engineers have in this car employed the fundamentals of motor car design in a manner fully as revolutionary as the application of the steam turbine to ocean-going ships. + + Your first ride in a Chrysler will compel a new conception of automobile transportation."

WHAT YOU EXPECT OF CHRYSLER

The imposing succession of Chrysler accomplishments has led the public instinctively to expect more of Chrysler than of other cars—and it is the completeness with which Chrysler fulfills these higher expectations that explains the ever-rising tide of Chrysler success.

You expect of Chrysler a charming individuality in style, and you get it. You expect a livelier and more thrilling spirit of performance, and you get it. You expect a more luxurious feeling of cradled comfort, and you get it. You expect a greater sum total of actual value in Chrysler, and you find it.

Chrysler today exerts a tremendous influence over the entire industry—and justifiably. In the five years of its meteoric rise, Chrysler has done more than any other force in the automobile world to revolutionize and modernize motor car standards.

That is the reason why the volume of Chrysler sales has increased to such mighty proportions—and why Chrysler enjoys such prestige in 93 countries.

We invite you to take a Chrysler demonstration—expecting more of Chrysler than of any car within several hundred dollars of its price.

NORTHERN MINNESOTA'S BRIGHTEST BOY

ATTENTION has been centered on Brainerd because of John Lowey, Minnesota's candidate for the Thomas A. Edison scholarship and the Duluth Herald gives this editorial of the fifteen-year-old Brainerd boy:

According to the newspaper reports John is an exceptionally able youngster and by his achievements in several fields seems to deserve the unusual honor bestowed upon him. About two weeks ago he was graduated from Shattuck military academy at Faribault, leading the ten ranking honor students, the youngest boy ever to do that. He also found time to be literary editor of the school's 1929 yearbook, play basketball and tennis and hold his own on the track team. In 1928 he won first place in science.

He was selected from a field of forty candidates from all parts of the state by a committee of trained educators appointed by Governor Christianson, and the examinations are said to have been unusually exacting.

Some time during the summer this boy, with one from each of all the other states and territories, will go to Trenton, New Jersey, to be examined by Mr. Edison. The one he selects will have his expenses paid at any college preferred, but the great electrical wizard hopes that the boy chosen will develop into a world-famous scientist and inventor.

Whether that will actually happen nobody knows, for genius is a rare spark and many great inventions have been conceived in minds that made little pretension to the scholarship involved in this new experiment.

But in any event Mr. Edison is bringing together some of the country's brightest boys, and Brainerd and Northern Minnesota are to be congratulated on producing so promising a candidate as young John Lowey.

AN OLD IDEA IN NEW PRESS

DR. CLARK G. CAMPBELL, president of the Eugenics Research association, has an idea, says the Baltimore Sun. Doubtless he thinks it a new one. He advances it with some show of pride, indicating he fancies himself the inventor, discoverer or papa.

This is it: Endowment of worthy families by the state, by the churches and by philanthropic foundations as a means of improving the race.

That idea was born back in the dim past when the first enterprising gentleman set himself up as chief of the tribe. Since then the monarchies of the world have had their royalty and the republics of this later day, not to be outdone, have their jobholders.

And that isn't all. In this country we are so addicted to the endowment idea we are not content to endow jobholders only. For some time we have been endowing manufacturers. And just now we are flirting with the possibility of extending such benefactions to the farmers.

The only startling innovation proposed by Dr. Campbell is the limiting of endowments to worthy families. Heretofore political regularity has covered a multitude of sins and nobody has cared a rap about improving the race. The only bigger and better babies produced have been our infant industries. And judging by the amount of coddling they have needed their improved stamina is nothing to brag about. With that experience to guide us Dr. Campbell will please pardon us if we stick to the belief that the improvement of the race will have to rely for a while longer upon vitamin B and the removal of adenoids and tonsils.

ONE WAY OF REDUCING

THE cities of Fargo, N. D., and Brainerd, Minn., are prohibiting by ordinance the distribution of handbills and circulars, says the Bemidji Pioneer. They claim that they are justified in such a measure because of the expense involved in cleaning the streets after the literature is swept around by the wind. Certainly automobile owners who find their cars cluttered with circulars and booklets would welcome such a move.

The Little Falls Transcript in an editorial comment says:

The city of Fargo has an ordinance which prohibits the distribution of handbills about the streets of the city, and Brainerd is considering a like measure. The matter was brought before the Brainerd council by one of the members who objected to paying fifty cents an hour for a man to sweep up the litter each morning. Several towns have already taken steps to stop all distribution of handbills at homes, due to the fact that lawns and porches are continually being littered with paper.

TAKES PRACTICAL VIEW

EARLE BROWN, director of the Minnesota state highway patrol, whose interest in public office is in doing a good job rather than drawing a salary, has wisely chosen to put no patrolmen on the state highways until they can be thoroughly trained, says the Minneapolis Star.

Saturday Mr. Brown explained that his full force of 35 men will not be in service until next spring. The men who take to the road at that time will be the pick of several hundred applicants. Mr. Brown is taking no chances on giving his force a bad reputation by using men who cannot be depended on to do the right thing in the right place. It is a safe prediction that under his leadership the highway patrol will be the most popular law enforcement body in the state.

The practical ideas of Mr. Brown are to be commended. He is well known in Brainerd and the lake region, having a beautiful summer home on the west shore of Mille Lacs lake. He has means enough of his own to retire, but believes in serving his state with as much devotion and ability as does our state commissioner of highways, C. M. Babcock.

FISHING SEASON UNDER WAY

THE fishing season in our Brainerd Lake Region is now well under way and every day or so the Dispatch is recording the catches made.

The fishermen are not confined to any certain age. Boys and girls are landing wall-eyed pike and the grandmothers, as youthful as the youngest devotees, are getting their share of the big ones.

The value of our lakes and streams in the fish life they possess is incalculable. There is a $100 thrill in landing a big fish. There is real recreation connected with a fishing party. It brings new thoughts, new energy, new spirit, new enthusiasm.

Our own people, long before our tourist visitors, realized the

"AN EVENING IN HAWAII"

Stupendous Spectacle at Chautauqua Presented by Vierra's Hawaiians

A spark-throwing, smoke belching volcano is to be a feature of Chautauqua this year.

The most elaborate and expensive set of stage scenery ever carried by a Chautauqua company is to be used by Vierra's Hawaiians this season. A realistic tropical sea, thatched houses in a back ground of palms, exotic moon, and a volcano in eruption are included in the unique and fantastic scenic and lighting effects for this program.

Swinging into this romantic South Sea setting comes a soft voiced group of Hawaiian singers in native costume who play Hawaiian music as it is meant to be played. Steel guitars, ukuleles and rich voices blend naturally into the poignant melodies of our island territory.

George W. Vierra, the director and producer of the company was among the first to introduce Hawaiian music into the United States. He has done more than any other artist to popularize the music of his native country here. The company members are also past masters at playing the island popular music. They give to the melody of the day the touch of the subtle harmony of Hawaii.

Vierra's Hawaiians have been a featured attraction on the Swarthmore Chautauquas in the east and were the headliners of the Redpath circuit last season. During the winter they have been the feature of the Keith vaudeville circuit, the Paramount Theatres, and the Universal chain of Theatres.

Here are some of the press comments:

The Buffalo Morning Express: "Vierra's Hawaiians are in a class by themselves."

Cumberland Times-Herald: "For real entertainment, Vierra's Hawaiians are unequalled."

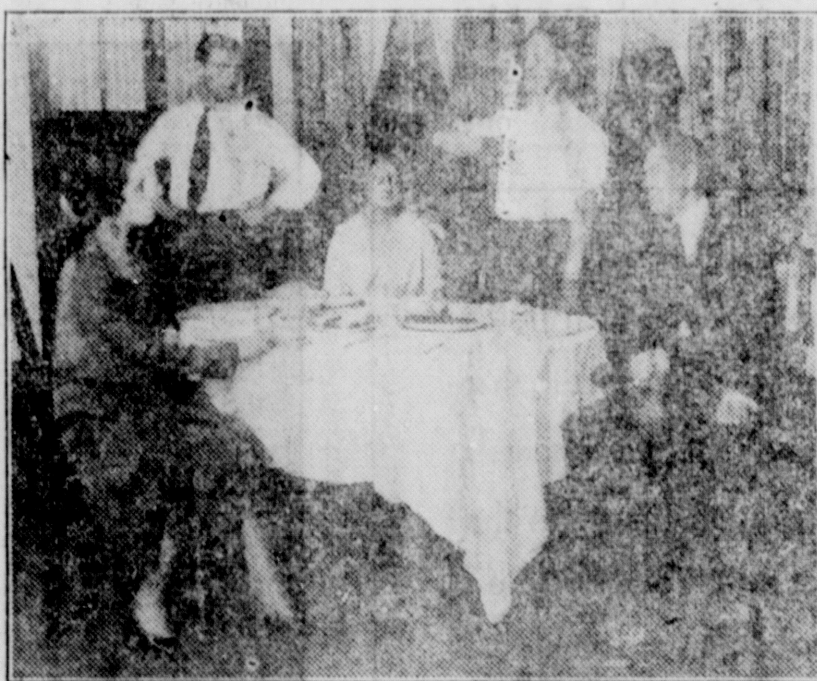

Monesson Daily Independent: "Without a doubt the greatest and most pleasing Hawaiian company we have ever seen."

Huntington Herald-Dispatch: "Mr. Vierra and his company are old favorites here and the passage of time only serves to perfect them in an art in which they already excel."

Opening number of Chautauqua program which starts tonight at 8 o'clock.

COMEDY COMES
STRAIGHT FROM BROADWAY

"Skidding" Hit of 1929

"Skidding" is the title of the play to be given as one program of Chautauqua this year. It has enjoyed one of the most successful seasons on Broadway of any comedy seen there in years.

The scene of the play is a certain town in the State of Idaho and one of the principal comic characters is an adolescent boy who has trouble keeping his hair combed. "Skidding" is the tale of a girl who breaks with her fiancé because her sister is unhappy in marriage, but after coming home to help her father, the Judge, try to win the nomination she decides to marry her sweetheart.

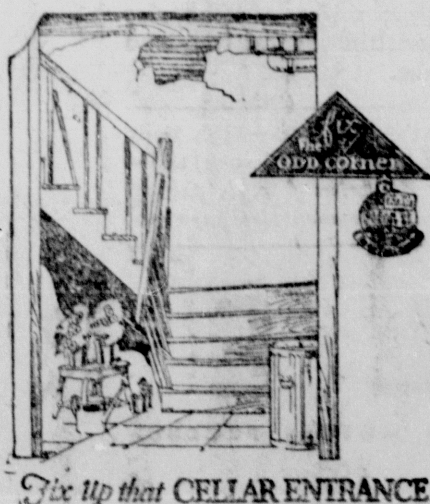

"Skidding" is a fast comedy. It is full of laughable lines and situations and does not merely build up to a big laugh at a climax. It has a few tense moments that lift it out of the ordinary. "Skidding" should not be seen by those who suffer from laughing. It is a real gloom chaser that is worth while.

The management of the Chautauqua feels very fortunate in securing "Skidding" for the platform just after its first successful season in New York and in fulfilling the mission of Chautauqua in bringing the best in entertainment to the people, instead of the people having to go to them.

It took a guarantee of 100 weeks to secure "Skidding" for Chautauqua. This is a real scoop as the play is still running on Broadway and was made possible only through the Redpath-Associated organization.

On Chautauqua Program Friday.

The entrance to the cellar is likely to be neglected. Ricketty stairway, down which a careless step will send you hurtling—cracked walls, and unsightly trash. True pride in the home will not permit these "ugly spots" to remain, even though they may be hidden from sight. EVERY part of the house should be in ship-shape order.

"At home after July first--"

Every one means a new home initiated, a new family begun . . . a new set of problems faced by "two-who-are-one."

They've many a question to settle, and many a thing to buy. Furniture, kitchenware, linen and china—silverware, cereals, meat and potatoes. . . . Familiar names will pass their lips as they buy—easily, naturally. Advertised products, quality merchandise . . . reliable . . . dependable. They've known them all their lives. But now they'll begin to read the advertisements in earnest—comparing values, budgeting expenses, choosing this, rejecting that, reserving the other till hubby gets his raise. They'll manage, all right—with the advertisements to help them.

Make it a habit to read the advertisements regularly. The days of helter-skelter selection and blindfolded buying are over. For the sake of time, economy and convenience, have your mind made up when you start out to buy.

Regular reading of the advertisements is one of the essentials of good housekeeping.

A realistic tropical sea, thatched houses in a back ground of palms, exotic moon, and a volcano in eruption are included in the unique and fantastic scenic and lighting effects for this program.

Swinging into this romantic South Sea setting comes a soft voiced group of Hawaiian singers in native costume who play Hawaiian music as it is meant to be played. Steel guitars, ukuleles and rich voices blend naturally into the poignant melodies of our island territory.

George W. Vierra, the director and producer of the company was among the first to introduce Hawaiian music into the United States. He has done more than any other artist to popularize the music of his native country here. The company members are also past masters at playing the most popular music. They give to the melody of the day the touch of the subtle harmony of Hawaii.

Vierra's Hawaiians have been a featured attraction on the Swarthmore Chautauqua in the east and were the headliners of the Redpath circuit last season. During the winter they have been the feature of the Keith vaudeville circuit, the Paramount Theatres, and the Universal chain of Theatres.

Here are some of the press comments:

The Buffalo Morning Express: "Vierra's Hawaiians are in a class by themselves."

Cumberland Times-Herald: "For real entertainment, Vierra's Hawaiians are unequalled."

Monesson Daily Independent: "Without a doubt the greatest and most pleasing Hawaiian company we have ever seen."

Huntington Herald-Dispatch: "Mr. Vierra and his company are old favorites here and the passage of time only serves to perfect them in an art in which they already excel."

STRAIGHT FROM BROADWAY

"Skidding" Hit of 1929

"Skidding" is the title of the play to be given as one program of Chautauqua this year. It has enjoyed one of the most successful seasons on Broadway of any comedy seen there in years.

The scene of the play is a certain town in the State of Idaho and one of the principal comic characters is an adolescent boy who has trouble keeping his hair combed. "Skidding" is the tale of a girl who breaks with her fiancé because her sister is unhappy in marriage, but after coming home to help her father, the Judge, try to win the nomination she decides to marry her sweetheart.

"Skidding" is a fast comedy. It is full of laughable lines and situations and does not merely build up to a big laugh at a climax. It has a few tense moments that lift it out of the ordinary. "Skidding" should not be seen by those who suffer from laughing. It is a real gloom chaser that is worth while.

The management of the Chautauqua feels very fortunate in securing "Skidding" for the platform just after its first successful season in New York and is fulfilling the mission of Chautauqua in bringing the best in entertainment to the people, instead of the people having to go to them.

It took a guarantee of 100 weeks to secure "Skidding" for Chautauqua. This is a real scoop as the play is still running on Broadway and was made possible only through the Redpath-Associated organization.

On Chautauqua Program Friday.

Each year thousands upon thousands of those neat, white envelopes find their way through the mails. You know what they are before you open them . . . an inner envelope, and a trim card—"Mr. and Mrs. So-and-so announce the marriage of their daughter"—and another card—"At home after July 1st, at 101 Moonlight Ave."

Every one means a new home initiated, a new family begun . . . a new set of problems faced by "two-who-are-one."

They've many a question to settle, and many a thing to buy. Furniture, kitchenware, linen and china—silverware, cereals, meat and potatoes. . . . Familiar names will pass their lips as they buy—easily, naturally. Advertised products, quality merchandise . . . reliable . . . dependable. They've known them all their lives. But now they'll begin to read the advertisements in earnest—comparing values, budgeting expenses, choosing this, rejecting that, reserving the other till hubby gets his raise. They'll manage, all right—with the advertisements to help them.

Make it a habit to read the advertisements regularly. The days of helter-skelter selection and blindfolded buying are over. For the sake of time, economy and convenience, have your mind made up when you start out to buy.

SEVENTH INNING RALLY GIVES "Y" 8 TO 4 VICTORY

WINNERS SCORE TWO IN FIFTH,
ONE IN SIXTH AND FIVE
IN LAST

NORTHEAST GOES "HAYWIRE" AT CLOSE OF GAME; "Y" AND SOUTHSIDE LEAD

The teams in the city baseball league are playing "Ring Around Rosie" these days. First the Y. M. C. A. beats Northeast, then Northeast beats the Southside and then Southside comes back to beat the Y. M. C. A.

Last night the "Y" boys took an 8 to 4 game from Northeast after N. E. had gone "haywire" in the last inning.

The "Y" boys started the balloon on its ascent in the fifth inning by scoring two runs. They followed with another run in the sixth and capped the climax in the seventh, the last inning, by crossing five men over the home plate.

The win places the Y. M. C. A. team in first place with the Southside. Both teams have three wins and two losses to their credit.

Northeast scored one run in the first, two in the second and one in the last.

Southside and Y. M. C. A. will meet Thursday evening at the Rosko field to decide which team will enter the first position and hold exclusive rights.

BABE RUTH HITS HIS 14TH HOME RUN OF SEASON

Griffith Field, Washington, D. C., June 26.—(U.P.)—Babe Ruth hit his 14th home run of the season in the fifth inning of the New York-Washington game here today. ## DIAMOND PICK-UPS

Ray Schmandt, former Brooklyn first baseman, is now playing with Canton in the Central league.

Abilene of the West Texas league has released Charley Martin, Russell Shamburg and A. J. Wedel, pitchers.

W. C. Constock, well known minor league outfielder, has joined the Martinsburg club of the Blue Ridge league.

Henry Boney, rookie pitcher, has been sent to Bridgeport of the Eastern league by the Giants. This is a Giant farm.

"Monk" Younger, coach of the Davidson college baseball team, believes he has a stellar pitcher this spring in Doc Kugler.

Pitcher Ken Penner, who was with Houston last season, made his start for Indianapolis on April 19 and held Milwaukee to four hits.

But one tried veteran, Capt. Cal McComber, is a member of the University of Vermont baseball team, the remainder being new talent.

Heinie Meine, righthanded pitcher purchased from Kansas City during the winter, has finally made terms with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Counting in exhibition games and semi-pro games, 700,000 fans have passed through the gates at Birmingham in the last two years.

Ed Crowley, trying out for third base with Baltimore, is the same Crowley that played end for Georgia Tech. The Griffs gave him a trial.

Brooklyn has taken on Joe Bradshaw, big righthanded pitcher, who served with Wilkes-Barre in the New York-Pennsylvania league last season.

Pacific coast experts are singing the praises of Frank Crosetti, young infielder with San Francisco, and say he is sure to go to the majors this year.

Pat Crawford, rookie first baseman with the New York Giants, hit three home runs in an exhibition game this spring, two of them coming with the bases fully occupied.

Charley Maxton, a former University of Purdue hurler, had the better of the veteran Rube Benton in the game of April 19 and the Columbus Senators made away with a 5 to 2 victory over Minneapolis.

Besides a lot of money and real estate left to his widow, the late Jack Dunn also left for the Baltimore Orioles a youthful southpaw, Beryl Richmond, who he said some day, will be sold to the majors for $100,000.

WILL UZCUDUN DROP IF IRON CHIN MEETS IT?

CROWD OF 60,000 ANTICIPATED
AT FIGHT TOMORROW NIGHT

GATE RECEIPTS, IT IS BELIEVED, MAY RUN OVER $600,000

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, June 26.—What will happen when Max Schmeling's mighty right fist connects with Paulino Uzcudun's iron chin at Yankee stadium tomorrow night? The question gripped the attention of boxing fans throughout the world today.

Reaching the highest level of interest manifested in any boxing contest since the second Dempsey-Tunney bout at Chicago in 1927, tomorrow night's 15-round heavyweight match promised to attract a crowd of more than 60,000 and gate receipts in excess of $600,000.

Unless the bout turns out to be a rude disappointment, the winner should figure prominently in the selection of Gene Tunney's successor. Present plans call for the winner to meet Jack Sharkey in September, or perhaps Jack Dempsey if the former champion elects to fight again.

Schmeling came to this country in May, 1928, and in four bouts over here, has knocked out Joe Monte, (7), Pietro Corri (3), Risko (9), and won a 10-round decision from Joe Sekyra.

One of the main concerns of Schmeling's boosters is whether he can stand up against punishment. He has three knockouts recorded against him—two when he was a youngster in 1924 and 1925 and a one-round K. O. at the hands of Typsey Daniels, a second rate Canadian negro, on February 25 last year.

If Schmeling can't take it, this match is almost certain to prove that fact. Paulino is more of a mauler than a knocker-out, but if Schmeling can stand up under his constant, never-wavering attack there will be

Answers Given Moot Golf Query

Jones and Hagen in Action.

The moot question, What is the most important shot in golf? has produced a number of different answers all interesting and a couple of them clever.

Willie Park, a grand putter, said: "The man who can putt is a match for anybody."

To which Harry Vardon replied: "The man who can pitch doesn't need to putt."

And one witty sophist dodged the issue by saying that the most important shot in golf is always "the next one."

"The drive is the most important shot," said Walter Hagen. "It makes every other shot easier and harder."

This is essentially a reasonable verdict, especially in these latter days of gargantuan courses, with the second shot depending almost exclusively on the long and accurate wallop off the tee.

"You must reach the green before you can begin putting," is Bobby Jones' support of Sir Walter's theory.

few who will question the German's ability to take it.

Lakewood, N. J., June 26.—Pronounced in the finest condition of his career by his handlers, Max Schmeling took it easy today after more than a month's hard training here. He weighed 188 yesterday, half a pound more than he expects to weigh for the fight. He will motor to New York tomorrow morning.

Hoosick Falls, N. Y., June 26.—Paulino Uzcudun rested today after completing his training for tomorrow night's bout with Max Schmeling. He weighed 189½ yesterday, but expects to pick up a pound or two before he weighs in on the afternoon of the fight.
Paulino will motor to Albany tomorrow morning and fly the rest of the way to New York.

BOBBY JONES IS STRONG FAVORITE FOR HIGH TITLE

STANDS OUT OVER FIELD TEEING

COURSE

PRACTICE ROUNDS 5 OF THEM, WERE BETTER THAN PAR FIGURES

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

Namoronock, N. Y., June 26.—The eve of another open golf championship finds Bobby Jones of Atlanta once more established as a strong favorite for the national title.

While the foremost professional golfers were competing on European links this spring, Bobby was devoting his attention to the practice of law. Now that the time has come to try conclusions over the west course at Winged Foot, Jones stands out over the field which will tee off here tomorrow.

Half a dozen practice rounds, five of them in better than par figures for the difficult Namoronock course, have served to place the Atlantan, who holds the amateur title, on edge for the next three days of competition.

Bobby Jones has been called the greatest of modern golfers often enough, but his performances at Winged Foot during the past few days have been so extraordinary as to enhance his reputation.

Once more, it is a case of Jones against the field.
Practically all of the 150 professional and amateur golfers who will compete in the national open this week are on hand. Only half a dozen of them have been able to equal or better par figures for the championship course.

Season's Total 608

Bunny in New Role
A hen in Ireland laid seven eggs near a rabbit burrow. The eggs disappeared and some time later a newly hatched chicken popped out. It is supposed the hen from the animals incubated the eggs.

Bobby Jones has done so five times in six attempts. The Atlantan actually appears better than ever.

It is a safe bet that Bobby will finish among the first three this week, a good bet that he will win the championship.

After Bobby Jones, the favorites are Walter Hagen, Horton Smith, Johnny Farrell, Harry Cooper, and Billy Burke, who won the New York state open last week.

Most of the contestants rested today, declining to be lured to the links over which the battle for the national open championship of 1929 starts tomorrow.

Yesterday's Hero—Val Piechich, Brooklyn catcher, whose home run with one on base tied the score and gave the Robins a chance to beat the Giants five straight. The score was 12 to 10.

The Boston Braves handed the Phillies their ninth successive defeat, 5 to 4, only to toss away the second game of a doubleheader, 3 to 6.

The Philadelphia Athletics won twice from the Boston Red Sox, 7 to 1 and 8 to 2, increasing the Mackmen's lead in the American league pennant race to ten full games.

New York's scheduled game with Washington was rained out.

Walter Stewart of the St. Louis Browns blanked the Cleveland Indians, 8 to 0, after the Ohioans had won the opener, 10 to 7.

Eleven runs in the seventh gave the Detroit Tigers a start towards their 14 to 2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

U. S. Supremacy Threatened!

By QUIN HALL

SINCE the day when pugilists gave up the bare knuckle fighting on the turf (and when each knockdown constituted a round), the heavyweight championship has been in possession of the United States. The line of home succession was upset to some degree when Bob Fitzsimmons, an Australian-Cornishman, stopped Jim Corbett at Carson City many years ago but Roby Robert was really never regarded as an outsider.

Some years ago, the late Tex Rickard started to dig up foreign challenges. Tex liked color. He revealed in "big gates." And he figured that an international aspect to heavyweight encounters would bolster up the game.

Today the U. S. supremacy in the heavyweight division is threatened by such invaders as Max Schmeling, Paulino Uzcudun and Otto Von Porat. A German, a Basque and a Norwegian are knocking at the door to the throne room left vacant by Gene Tunney.

Next Thursday night, in the Milk Fund show, at the Yankee Stadium, in New York, Schmeling and Uzcudun cross punches in the main 15-round event. One is sure to be eliminated as a contender for the present. Perhaps both. Such things have happened. Schmeling is strong and aggressive and he is also speedy. Uzcudun is not a great boxer, nor has he a killing punch, but he can take a world of punishment and still keep swinging both arms. Schmeling has dynamite in his fists. It should be a merry evening.

Von Porat is not out of the picture. He shook Uzcudun harder than any of the others the Basque met and sent Heene to a hospital for repairs.

Of the American scrappers, Jack Sharkey, the Boston Gob, seems the best and he may yet be able to stamp out the menace which threatens our supremacy.

Right now, however, Europe seems to be doing a first-class job of threatening. And the Old World is sending over its best crop at a time when the American defenders seem to be somewhat mediocre.

WINNERS SCORE TWO IN FIFTH, ONE IN SIXTH AND FIVE IN LAST

NORTHEAST GOES "HAYWIRE" AT CLOSE OF GAME; "Y" AND SOUTHSIDE LEAD

The teams in the city baseball league are playing "Ring Around Rosie" these days. First the Y. M. C. A. beats Northeast, then Northeast beats the Southside and then Southside comes back to beat the Y. M. C. A.

Last night the "Y" boys took an 8 to 4 game from Northeast after N. E. had gone "haywire" in the last inning.

The "Y" boys started the balloon on its ascent in the fifth inning by scoring two runs. They followed with another run in the sixth and capped the climax in the seventh, the last inning, by crossing five men over the home plate.

The win places the Y. M. C. A. team in first place with the Southside. Both teams have three wins and two losses to their credit.

Northeast scored one run in the first, two in the second and one in the last.

Southside and Y. M. C. A. will meet Thursday evening at the Rosko field to decide which team will enter the first position and hold exclusive rights.

BABE RUTH HITS HIS 14TH HOME RUN OF SEASON

Griffith Field, Washington, D. C., June 26.—(U.P.) Babe Ruth hit his 14th home run of the season in the fifth inning of the New York-Washington game here today. The clout was made to the farthest point of the field before going into the center field bleachers. Fred Marberry was pitching at the time.

DIAMOND PICK-UPS

Ray Schmandt, former Brooklyn first baseman, is now playing with Canton in the Central league.

Abilene of the West Texas league has released Charley Martin, Russell Shamburg and A. J. Wedel, pitchers.

W. C. Comstock, well known minor league outfielder, has joined the Martinsburg club of the Blue Ridge league.

Henry Boney, rookie pitcher, has been sent to Bridgeport of the Eastern league by the Giants. This is a Giant farm.

"Monk" Younger, coach of the Davidson college baseball team, believes he has a stellar pitcher this spring in Doc Kugler.

Pitcher Ken Penner, who was with Houston last season, made his start for Indianapolis on April 19 and held Milwaukee to four hits.

But one tried veteran, Capt. Cal Macomber, is a member of the University of Vermont baseball team, the remainder being new talent.

Heinie Meine, righthanded pitcher purchased from Kansas City during the winter, has finally made terms with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Counting in exhibition games and semi-pro games, 700,000 fans have passed through the gates at Birmingham in the last two years.

Ed Crowley, trying out for third base with Baltimore, is the same Crowley that played end for Georgia Tech. The Griffs gave him a trial.

Brooklyn has taken on Joe Bradshaw, big righthanded pitcher, who served with Wilkes-Barre in the New York-Pennsylvania league last season.

Pacific coast experts are singing the praises of Frank Crosetti, young infielder with San Francisco, and say he is sure to go to the majors this year.

Pat Crawford, rookie first baseman with the New York Giants, hit three home runs in an exhibition game this spring, two of them coming with the bases fully occupied.

Charley Maxton, a former University of Purdue hurler, had the better of the veteran Rube Benton in the game of April 19 and the Columbus Senators made away with a 5 to 2 victory over Minneapolis.

Besides a lot of money and real estate left to his widow, the late Jack Dunn also left for the Baltimore Orioles a youthful southpaw, Beryl Richmond, who he said some day, will be sold to the majors for $100,000.

WILL UZCUDUN DROP IF IRON CHIN MEETS IT?

CROWD OF 60,000 ANTICIPATED AT FIGHT TOMORROW NIGHT

GATE RECEIPTS, IT IS BELIEVED, MAY RUN OVER $600,000

By GEORGE KIRKSEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, June 26.—What will happen when Max Schmeling's mighty right fist connects with Paulino Uzcudun's iron chin at Yankee stadium tomorrow night? The question gripped the attention of boxing fans throughout the world today.

Reaching the highest level of interest manifested in any boxing contest since the second Dempsey-Tunney bout at Chicago in 1927, tomorrow night's 15-round heavyweight match promised to attract a crowd of more than 60,000 and gate receipts in excess of $600,000.

Unless the bout turns out to be a rude disappointment, the winner should figure prominently in the selection of Gene Tunney's successor. Present plans call for the winner to meet Jack Sharkey in September, or perhaps Jack Dempsey if the former champion elects to fight again.

Schmeling came to this country in May, 1928, and in four bouts over here, has knocked out Joe Monte, (7), Pietro Corri (3), Risko (9), and won a 10-round decision from Joe Sekyra.

One of the main concerns of Schmeling's boosters is whether he can stand up against punishment. He has three knockouts recorded against him—two when he was a youngster in 1924 and 1925 and a one-round K. O. at the hands of Typsey Daniels, a second rate Canadian negro, on February 25 last year.

If Schmeling can't take it, this match is almost certain to prove that fact. Paulino is more of a mauler than a knocker-out, but if Schmeling can stand up under his constant, never-wavering attack there will be

Answers Given Moot Golf Query

Jones and Hagen in Action.

The moot question, What is the most important shot in golf? has produced a number of different answers all interesting and a couple of them clever.

Willie Park, a grand putter, said: "The man who can putt is a match for anybody."

To which Harry Vardon replied: "The man who can pitch doesn't need to putt."

And one witty sophist dodged the issue by saying that the most important shot in golf is always "the next one."

"The drive is the most important shot," said Walter Hagen. "It makes every other shot easier and harder."

This is essentially a reasonable verdict, especially in these latter days of gargantuan courses, with the second shot depending almost exclusively on the long and accurate wallop of the tee.

few who will question the German's ability to take it. Betting odds today were 6 to 5, and take your pick. Those who made their choice were required to lay the 6.

Lakewood, N. J., June 26.—Pro-nounced in the finest condition of his career by his handlers, Max Schmeling took it easy today after more than a month's hard training here. He weighed 188 yesterday, half a pound more than he expects to weigh for the fight. He will motor to New York tomorrow morning.

Hoosick Falls, N. Y., June 26.—Paulino Uzcudun rested today after completing his training for tomorrow night's bout with Max Schmeling. He weighed 189½ yesterday, but expects to pick up a pound or two before he weighs in on the afternoon of the fight.

Paulino will motor to Albany tomorrow morning and fly the rest of the way to New York.

BOBBY JONES IS STRONG FAVORITE FOR HIGH TITLE

STANDS OUT OVER FIELD TEEING OFF AT WINGED FOOT COURSE

PRACTICE ROUNDS, 5 OF THEM, WERE BETTER THAN PAR FIGURES

By FRANK GETTY (United Press Sports Editor)

Namoronck, N. Y., June 26.—The eve of another open golf championship finds Bobby Jones of Atlanta once more established as a strong favorite for the national title.

While the foremost professional golfers were competing on European links this spring, Bobby was devoting his attention to the practice of law. Now that the time has come to try conclusions over the west course at Winged Foot, Jones stands out over the field which will tee off here tomorrow.

Half a dozen practice rounds, five of them in better than par figures for the difficult Namoronck course, have served to place the Atlanta, who holds the amateur title, on edge for the next three days of competition.

Bobby Jones has been called the greatest of modern golfers often enough, but his performances at Winged Foot during the past few days have been so extraordinary as to enhance his reputation.

Once more, it is a case of Jones against the field. Practically all of the 150 professional and amateur golfers who will compete in the national open this week are on hand. Only half a dozen of them have been able to equal or better par figures for the championship course.

Bobby Jones has done so five times in six attempts. The Atlanta actually appears better than ever.

It is a safe bet that Bobby will finish among the first three this week, a good bet that he will win the championship.

After Bobby Jones, the favorites are Walter Hagen, Horton Smith, Johnny Farrell, Harry Cooper, and Billy Burke, who won the New York state open last week.

Most of the contestants rested today, declining to be lured to the links over which the battle for the national open championship of 1929 starts tomorrow.

The Philadelphia Athletics won twice from the Boston Red Sox, 7 to 1 and 8 to 2, increasing the Mack-men's lead in the American league pennant race to ten full games.

U. S. Supremacy Threatened!

By QUIN HALL

SINCE the day when pugilists gave up the bare knuckle fighting on the turf (and when each knockdown constituted a round), the heavyweight championship has been in possession of the United States. The line of home succession was upset to some degree when Bob Fitzsimmons, an Australian-Corishman, stopped Jim Corbett at Carson City many years ago but Robby Robert was really never regarded as an outsider.

Some years ago, the late Tex Rickard started to dig up foreign challengers. Tex liked color. He revealed in "big gates." And he figured that an international aspect to heavyweight encounters would bolster up the game. Today the U. S. supremacy in the heavyweight division is threatened by such invaders as Max Schmeling, Paulino Uzcudun and Otto Von Porat. A German, a Basque and a Norwegian are knocking at the door to the throne room left vacant by Gene Tunney. Next Thursday night, in the Milk Fund show, at the Yankee Stadium, in New York, Schmeling and Uzcudun cross punches in the main 15-round event. One is sure to be eliminated as a contender for the present. Perhaps both. Such things have happened. Schmeling is strong and aggressive and he is also speedy. Uzcudun is not a great boxer, nor has he a killing punch, but he can take a world of punishment and still keep swinging both arms. Schmeling has dynamite in his fists. It should be a merry evening. Von Porat is not out of the picture. He shook Uzcudun harder than any of the others the Basque met and sent Heene to a hospital for repairs. Of the American scrappers, Jack Sharkey, the Boston Gob, scores the best and he may yet be able to stamp out the menace which threatens our supremacy. Right now, however, Europe seems to be doing a first-class job of threatening. And the Old World is sending over the best crop at a time when the American defenders seem to be somewhat mediocre.

WOMAN'S FIRST CAR DIDN'T COST PENNY

Mrs. Mae Klick Wins "Chev"; Mrs. Mary Hill Loses Because of Incomplete Card

Mrs. Mae Klick, East Oak Street, today owns her first car. It didn't cost her a penny. She was given it, a Chevrolet coach, at an automobile show sponsored by the Lively Auto Co., Brainerd, at the circus grounds last evening.

Mrs. Klick was much more fortunate than Mrs. Mary Hill, Brainerd, who was slated to win but didn't because she failed to fill out completely, as specified, the card which she entered.

More than 1,000 people saw the car given away.

JAPAN RATIFYING ANTI-WAR TREATY

Washington, June 26.—(U.P.)—Officials who learned from United Press dispatches today that ratification of the Kellogg anti-war treaty had been approved by the Japanese privy council expressed gratification that the final obstacle to making the pact effective apparently has been overcome.

"Assuming the press dispatches are well founded," Secretary of State Stimson said, "I know Mr. Kellogg will be very happy, and I am happy."

Reports of the Japanese ratifications in the archives of the state department, where those of the other 14 original signatories now repose, will fulfill the last condition to making the treaty effective.

Fishing for a Crook

By AD SCHUSTER

(Copyright.)

THE Denver Kid wore a new suit and carried a cane. From under the broad brim of a hat, which shaded his face, shone two dark eyes, suspicious, appraising eyes. For all the pose of ease and leisure the Kid was alert. He was playing a game of hide and seek, and the police of the city were "it." Let one of them read his disguise and it would be over. But they wouldn't read it. That was all. The Kid would see to that.

Up the street came Patrolman Regan with a swinging confidence that the Kid remembered. Regan surveyed his fellows with a curiously business-like smile. He was like a purring cat, pretending indifference and ready to spring. The Kid held his pose, but his knuckles on the handle of the cane turned white.

"Regan!" The Kid boarded a car and put blocks behind him. He was a fool, that's what, thinking he could get by with a dude's outfit. That's what they would be expecting. And they were all looking for him. The Kid, with his arm over the back of the seat, was the picture of unconcern, but he was thinking, scheming a way out of the trap.

Down the street he could see the water, the piers and the fishermen. The car went on and they were gone. But the Kid had an idea. The next day there joined the group of silent men one more of the mold and manner of fishermen. He wore a slouch hat turned yellow-brown in the sun, and his clothes were without crease and faded on the shoulders.

The Kid hunched on the pier, and, holding a pole, became one of the scores all doing the same. They were as much alike as clumps of clay plastered on the boards. The sun warmed him, the sport invited, and the Kid smiled. This was his triumph. Why had he not thought of it before? Back in the streets the cops were trying to find his face in the crowd. The city was full of them. Here were men who asked no questions, who sat all day watching the waters, waiting for the fish to bite, enjoying magnificent ease.

So the Kid fished, and little fish ate at his bait almost as fast as he could drop the line into the water. Sometimes there came the tug of a big one hooked, the quick exhilarating jerks which sent electric currents up his arm, and made him forget the man-hunt and the cops. He was a fisherman when he landed his prize, and he knew that the row of men, who pretended not to notice, knew the size and value of what he had caught. He ran out of bait.

The Kid looked at the man next to him—a hat on a bundle of clothes.

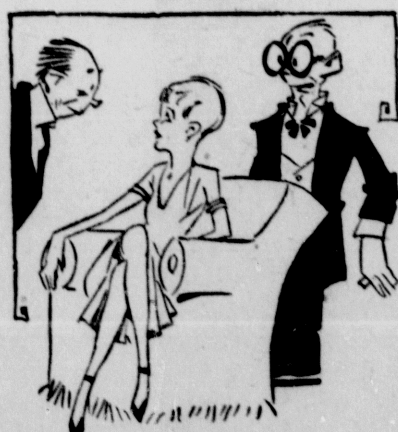

"Wanta sell some bait? I'm out." The man pawed with large fingers in a damp mass wrapped in newspaper. Slowly he turned his head bringing into view for the first time a square face.

"The Kid!" said the man, "and on my day off, I guess I'm not the lucky stiff." He held his hand to his hip pocket, the fisherman no longer but Regan the cop.

"You'll come along with me," said the cop; "I can use that reward as well as anybody. By Gar, think of your fishing right next to me all the time!"

The line of silent fishermen looked up as they passed and wondered why two of their number should quit so early, and the fishing so good.

The bulletin is summarized as follows:

Potatoes fed in live stock rations are generally comparable to good corn silage.

Potatoes may be fed raw to cattle, sheep, horses and swine, but are best cooked for swine. Raw potatoes have only 2.3 the value of cooked potatoes fed to pigs. Raw potatoes proved to be as good as cooked potatoes fed to dairy cows.

Raw potatoes may safely constitute one-half the dry matter in rations for cattle and sheep and one-fourth the dry matter in rations for horses. Cooked or raw potatoes should not replace more than one-half the grain allowance in fattening pigs.

Raw potatoes fed to dairy cows at the rate of from 25 to 35 pounds daily have actually increased milk production, but larger amounts will taint the milk, cause a salty butter and may cause indigestion and bloating.

The dry matter in potatoes is composed largely of starch, a carbohydrate valuable in both fattening and milk-producing operations.

Potatoes are low in protein or growth-producing material and some protein concentrate or roughage should be fed with them.

Raw potatoes are best fed sliced through a root cutter. Frozen, rotted, or decayed potatoes may cause trouble if fed to live stock.

Raw potatoes have an acrid taste and tend to increase the flow of digestive juices. They should not be fed with other feeds that tend to irritate the digestive system and they should always be fed with caution.

Efficiency Is Key to

Beef Feeder's Profit

Efficiency in feeding methods—not a wide margin between the prices paid for feeder cattle and the prices obtained for them on the market—are likely to determine the profit of the beef cattle feeder for the next few years, in the opinion of C. R. Arnold of the rural economics department of the Ohio State university.

However, Arnold believes the beef cattle outlook is at present favorable for the man who produces feeder cattle. It is also favorable for the man who can purchase calves and carry them through a large portion of their growing period, and then feed them out, providing he has an abundance of cheap pasture.

The market outlook for fat cattle does not appear favorable for the next three months, but may strengthen in the late summer, Arnold concludes after a study of figures on receipts of cattle thus far this year, and on the number of cattle now on farms in this and other states.

Best Hog Pasture

Some farmers are short of suitable land or believe that they cannot afford to use good crop land for hog pasture. Anyone who has efficiently used pasture and kept close check on the financial end of his business would testify that the average acre of farm land devoted to hog pasture will yield a return far in excess of that secured from crops of wheat, oats, corn, or hay. Where failures have been noted in the use of pasture, the evident cause was that of an attempt to make some rocky, barren, out-of-the-way piece of land grow the crop.

Before Sow Farrows

A day or so before each sow farrows she should be washed with warm water and a good laundry soap. After washing, the belly and udders should be rubbed with lard to keep the skin from cracking and becoming sore. She should then be put into a properly cleaned pen and left there until the pigs are farrowed. Clean straw, and not old litter scraped up around the pens, should be used for bedding.

Water for Ewes

Ewes with twins, getting a little extra grain food, drink a good deal more than ewes with single lambs getting no grain. The excessive call on the ewe by their lambs causes all the more drouth on the system, and thence more thirst, naturally because there is not so much sap in that dietary as there is in green feed. Indeed, when the lambs get strong, they begin to drink even before they are weaned, if milk runs short and the herbage is dry through a spell of dry weather.

WOMAN'S FIRST CAR DIDN'T COST PENNY

Mrs. Mae Klick Wins "Chev"; Mrs. Mary Hill Loses Because of Incomplete Card

Mrs. Mae Klick, East Oak Street, today owns her first car. It didn't cost her a penny. She was given it, a Chevrolet coach, at an automobile show sponsored by the Lively Auto Co., Brainerd, at the circus grounds last evening.

Mrs. Klick was much more fortunate than Mrs. Mary Hill, Brainerd, who was slated to win but didn't because she failed to fill out completely, as specified, the card which she entered.

More than 1,000 people saw the car given away.

JAPAN RATIFYING ANTI-WAR TREATY

Washington, June 26.—(U.P.)—Officials who learned from United Press dispatches today that ratification of the Kellogg anti-war treaty had been approved by the Japanese privy council expressed gratification that the final obstacle to making the pact effective apparently has been overcome.

"Assuming the press dispatches are well founded," Secretary of State Stimson said, "I know Mr. Kellogg will be very happy, and I am happy."

Reports of the Japanese ratifications in the archives of the state department, where those of the other 14 original signatories now repose, will fulfill the last condition to making the treaty effective.

PERFECT

A group of traveling men were swapping lies about their radios in a Smith Center drug store, as Tom Klene tells it. An old man had been listening silently.

"Got a radio, old man?" asked one of the drummers.

"Yeah," replied the old fellow. "I got a little 2-tube affair. It's a pretty good one, though."

"Can you tune out these little stations with it?"

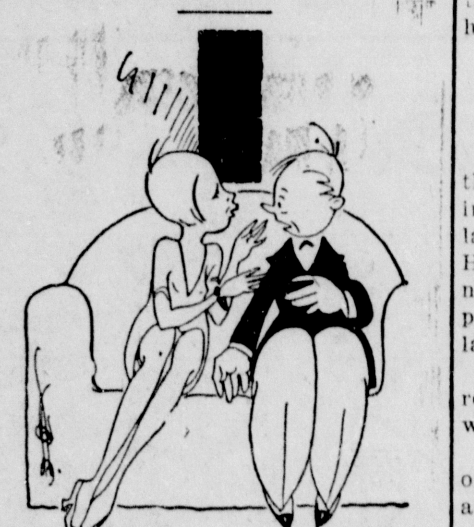

"Well, I was listening to a quartet the other night, and I didn't like the tenor, so I just tuned him out and listened to the three of 'em."

Apple Gases Poisonous

The average individual would think that no harm could arise from a cargo of apples; the sailor knows different. The gases they give off are highly dangerous in a confined atmosphere, and apples—harmless apples—spell death to the man who is imprisoned in the hold with them. As a matter of fact, seamen have lost their lives from this apparently innocent cause.

Fishing for a Crook

By AD SCHUSTER

(Copyright.)

THE Denver Kid wore a new suit and carried a cane. From under the broad brim of a hat, which shaded his face, shone two dark eyes, suspicious, appraising eyes. For all the pose of ease and leisure the Kid was alert. He was playing a game of hide and seek, and the police of the city were "it." Let one of them read his disguise and it would be over. But they wouldn't read it. That was all. The Kid would see to that.

Up the street came Patrolman Regan with a swinging confidence that the Kid remembered. Regan surveyed his fellows with a curiously business-like smile. He was like a purring cat, pretending indifference and ready to spring. The Kid held his pose, but his knuckles on the handle of the cane turned white.

"Regan!" The Kid boarded a car and put blocks behind him. He was a fool, that's what, thinking he could get by with a dude's outfit. That's what they would be expecting. And they were all looking for him. The Kid, with his arm over the back of the seat, was the picture of unconcern, but he was thinking, scheming a way out of the trap.

Down the street he could see the water, the piers and the fishermen. The car went on and they were gone. But the Kid had an idea. The next day there joined the group of silent men one more of the mold and manner of fishermen. He wore a slouch hat turned yellow-brown in the sun, and his clothes were without crease and faded on the shoulders.

The Kid hunched on the pier, and, holding a pole, became one of the scores all doing the same. They were as much alike as clumps of clay plastered on the boards. The sun warmed him, the sport invited, and the Kid smiled. This was his triumph. Why had he not thought of it before? Back in the streets the cops were trying to find his face in the crowd. The city was full of them. Here were men who asked no questions, who sat all day watching the waters, waiting for the fish to bite, enjoying magnificent ease.

So the Kid fished, and little fish ate at his bait almost as fast as he could drop the line into the water. Sometimes there came the tug of a big one hooked, the quick exhilarating jerks which sent electric currents up his arm, and made him forget the man-hunt and the cops. He was a fisherman when he landed his prize, and he knew that the row of men, who pretended not to notice, knew the size and value of what he had caught. He ran out of bait.

The Kid looked at the man next to him—a hat on a bundle of clothes.

"Wanta sell some bait? I'm out."

The man pawed with large fingers in a damp mass wrapped in newspaper. Slowly he turned his head bringing into view for the first time a square face.

"The Kid!" said the man, "and on my day off, I guess I'm not the lucky stiff." He held his hand to his hip pocket, the fisherman no longer but Regan the cop.

"You'll come along with me," said the cop; "I can use that reward as well as anybody. By Gar, think of your fishing right next to me all the time!"

The line of silent fishermen looked up as they passed and wondered why two of their number should quit so early, and the fishing so good.

LIVE STOCK

POTATOES RIGHT
FOR LIVE STOCK

Rations Are Generally Comparable to Corn Silage.

Potatoes make a good succulent feed for all classes of live stock when fed as a part of the ration, declares E. J. Maynard, associate animal husbandman for the Colorado Agricultural college experiment station in a new bulletin just issued on "Potatoes For Live Stock."

Copies of this bulletin may be obtained free of charge by writing the extension service of the college.

Subjects discussed in the booklet include preparation for feeding, potato ensilage, potatoes and potato silage for sheep, potatoes for dairy cows, swine and horses.

The bulletin is summarized as follows:

Potatoes fed in live stock rations are generally comparable to good corn silage.

Potatoes may be fed raw to cattle, sheep, horses and swine, but are best cooked for swine. Raw potatoes have only 2.3 the value of cooked potatoes fed to pigs. Raw potatoes proved to be as good as cooked potatoes fed to dairy cows.

The dry matter in potatoes is composed largely of starch, a carbohydrate valuable in both fattening and milk-producing operations.

Potatoes are low in protein or growth-producing material and some protein concentrate or roughage should be fed with them.

Raw potatoes are best fed sliced through a root cutter. Frozen, rotted, or decayed potatoes may cause trouble if fed to live stock.

Raw potatoes have an acrid taste and tend to increase the flow of digestive juices. They should not be fed with other feeds that tend to irritate the digestive system and they should always be fed with caution.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

June 26, 1904

Richard L. Guphill of Aitkin captured a silver tea service and $1,000 in cash in the third shootout of a tie, in what was probably the most exciting finish ever witnessed in a grand American tournament held at Indianapolis shooting tourney.

The electric light plant at the dam will be shut off for two days for repairs, Superintendent Peterson announced today.

One of the most enthusiastic Elks at Walker yesterday was W. H. Cleary. He caught a nice string of 14 pike, one pike weighing 14 pounds.

The Misses Mamie and Gertrude Koop left this afternoon for Little Falls where they will visit for a short time with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McKay left for Deerwood this afternoon where they will spend Sunday.

The Brainerd Elks and their families who went to Walker yesterday for the Elks picnic, returned last night after having enjoyed a very pleasant day. The members of the Elks baseball team defeated the Walker team in a game by a score of 9 to 2. S. R. Adair is manager of the team.

The funeral of W. A. Poppenberg was held this morning at the St. Francis Catholic church. It was one of the largest funerals ever held in the city. Rev. D. W. Lynch officiated.

much work and continuing the sessions well into the summer, the course of 25 lessons was completed last night.

Much credit is due George Harris who previous to the forming of the class took the home course and with the aid of the phonograph records with the course, learned to speak the language fluently. The course is especially well outlined for beginners as the method of learning the most commonly used phrases and words are used extensively from the start.

About a dozen members have taken the course and during the time of the course, many visitors have attended the class who have studied Spanish before. The class will resume its studies again in the autumn.

CHAPTER LVI.
AMELIA might have stuck it out if chance hadn't thrown them together at the Riegman's tea.

Amelia's lip curled. "What did I ever see in him?" she thought contemptuously, and trailed over to him, all gracious smiles.

Avery had forgotten her charms. He put down the sherry, and wiped his mouth with the back of his hand. Amelia suppressed the desire to laugh in his face. Instead she reached out her jeweled hand.

"Whatever brought you here; and where did you get the sherry?" she drawled.

And then their hands met, their eyes . . . the old, tingling weakness swept over her . . . blindness, madness.

"Oh my dear," he murmured, "my very dear!" while she clung to him, trembling.

If she had been any less the grande dame her pride might have saved her, but Amelia Beecher didn't judge herself by the standards by which she judged other women. Before two days had passed Avery Woodward had his old room back in the Beecher's beautiful place in San Mateo, and Amelia's husband who had his own reasons for not desiring too much attention from his wife, was delighted. He wrung Woodward's hand and told him to make himself at home, and use the car and chauffeur whenever he wanted to go into town.

"Thanks, but I won't be going into the city much for a while," Avery Woodward said. He had no desire to see Crystal again. She was getting fat, and her disposition wasn't what it used to be. Also, she was broke.

When Avery Woodward disappeared, Crystal was almost relieved. Her financial situation had become desperate. With no hope of help from her mother, there were times when marriage with Ralph seemed the only thing.

"I might do worse," she mused and little pictures of herself and Ralph arriving at the Ritz, in Paris, of high-powered cars, and sable furs, flitted ingratiatingly through her mind.

But would he be generous? There was always that little doubt, that instinctive distrust of Ralph as the prodigal spender. He talked big money, but what had he ever given her? The apartment, a few hundred dollars, dinners, silk stockings, a silver bag—little things like that. He had never been really open-handed like Gideon Cocklebury, who bought Avery Woodward's daubs, and more recently, presents for her.

"Worth a cool million and a half," Avery had said. Well, she might as well get it as some other girl. Marry him even. Why not? She'd rather have him for a husband than a lover. With Cocklebury to pay bills, and Avery the old family friend to console her.

So she encouraged Cocklebury, flattered him, coaxed him. Even refused his lavish offers of money with shy downcast looks. "Oh I know that other girls do, but I would be all right from somebody I can trust like you, but I couldn't, somehow. I'm sort of a hick, I'm afraid. I was raised on a ranch in the country . . . um-hum, didn't you know that? With the most old-fashioned mother, and the sternest old stepfather . . . it's all in the way you were brought up, isn't it?"

It had the desired effect. He redoubled his efforts to win her. Marriage? He hadn't said anything about that yet, and his sly hints for less formal arrangements sigh, with her lovely gold head on his shoulder. "I shouldn't have come to the city. I don't know what will become of me. I guess I'll have to give up this apartment, and go and live with Mother in San Jose. She's thinking of investing in a rooming house . . . it hurts, coming down to that, doesn't it? But might as well be cheerful . . . You'll prob-

Ralph, darling—I have missed you. . . .

was lost on the innocent, fresh-from-the-country Crystal, so that presently he ceased hinting and beseeched her with presents instead, but even so, the situation was becoming desperate.

If only he'd hurry and propose. If only Avery would sober up and come back.

In her relief at getting away from Cocklebury occasionally Crystal was more charming than she had ever been to Ralph. She would take his arm and hang on it, delighting in his clean young strength. Look up into his face adoringly. "Ralph, darling—I have missed you . . . we never see each other any more!"

He found her quite irresistible. Certain resolutions to see less of this dangerous and expensive young woman, were gradually swept aside. She no longer kept up the fiction of her art studies. "I'm a miserable failure," she'd ably find me in blue gingham, sweeping the front walk when you come to call!"

"You'd be beautiful in sack-cloth," he'd murmur. But he was afraid of losing Crystal. He had grown so used to dropping in at the comfortable studio apartment he had chosen for her.

"Don't worry, dear," he said when he left.

He slept little that night. He lay awake, turning over and over in his mind, a plan for breaking loose from the iron hand of old John Greely. He must make more money . . . invest . . . impossible to grub along like this for? . . . what did Greely take him

Before he closed his eyes he made up his mind to see Greely in the morning, to break away from him, at any cost.

POUR COOL WATER ON HEAD OF HOG

Icy Liquid on Animal's Body Will Do Much Harm.

When a hog gets overheated, pour cool water on his head, but not on his body, warns J. W. Wulchert, extension specialist in animal husbandry at Ohio State university. "Pouring water on the body of the hog is for some reason very likely to kill him," says Wulchert. "Pouring water on his head cools him off and helps him."

Hogs should be protected from any necessity for violent exercise during hot weather, Wulchert says. There should be no reason why they should be compelled to run about or even to move more than necessary. They should have plenty of shade, and cool water available at all times.

"The hog has very little natural protection from the sun, and consequently some artificial protection must be provided," says the specialist. "Natural shade probably is best, but it is not always available in the hog lot. Where it is available a covering about four feet from the ground and open on all four sides will usually prove satisfactory. In some localities it may be advisable to give additional protection on the side in the direction of the prevailing storms. The shelter need not be elaborate. Almost any sort of open framework over which straw, fodder, or similar material is placed, will suffice."

"Many hog men use a wallow as an additional protection against overheating. If properly constructed and handled, the wallow is a great aid. There is one possible objection to its use for the man who is shipping hogs in the summer time. The hogs which are accustomed to the wallow will suffer more severely when they are loaded in cars for shipment, and the loss from this course will be greater than if the hogs had been inured to hot weather."

Give Additional Feed to Pigs in a "Creep"

When about three weeks old, the pigs will begin to eat grain from their mother's trough. It is important that they be now supplied additional feed, where the sows cannot get at it.

This is best done by providing a "creep" in a corner of the paddock or pasture, with openings of such size that the pigs can run in and out while the sows are excluded. At first a little cracked corn seems about the most palatable feed. Later they may be fed a suitable mixture of concentrates, either being hand-fed all they will clean up twice or three times a day or else being fed by means of a self-feeder.

For young pigs skim milk and buttermilk are easily the best of all protein-rich feeds. Nothing else aids so greatly in keeping them growing lustily. The concentrates fed pigs at this time should consist of the farm grains, with a considerable proportion of protein-rich feeds like middlings (standard middlings), linseed meal, and tankage. If there is an abundance of skim milk or buttermilk, relatively little of other high-protein feeds need be used.

Live Stock Notes

The sow and pigs should not be kept in the individual pens longer than ten days.

Pigs will usually begin to eat a little feed when they are three to four weeks old.

Cattle and alfalfa make the best combination to keep fertility on the soil so let both be taxed alike.

Pigs fed semi-solid buttermilk gain faster than those fed skim milk. A possible explanation of the fact may be that the skim milk was too bulky.

Calves that have had no grain, but have suckled good milking cows, may be sold direct to the butchers at seven and nine months old at attractive prices.

A lamb that is kept gaining from birth until ready for the market will produce its gains at a lower cost than if it is allowed to fool away its time on part of a ration.

Barley, in an experiment recently completed at Colorado Agricultural college, proved slightly superior and a little cheaper as a feed for hogs than corn for making gains.

Cattle feeders surely do need a little protection because the cattle market fluctuates so much.

Hogs are very susceptible to both internal and external parasites. They must be guarded against these, or profit may be easily turned into loss.

As soon as the lambs are able to nibble at grain and hay, provide a creep for them where they can eat undisturbed by the ewes. This is very important from the standpoint of economical returns.

Swede and Finn Barks in Long Ocean Race

Gothenburg, Sweden.—An old-fashioned sailing race from Australia to England has just been begun by a Swedish and a Finnish bark. The Swedish entry, the Beatrice of Gothenburg, is the last four-masted full-rigger in the Swedish merchant marine. She is 2,100 gross tons. Her competitor is the Herzogin Cecilie, whose home port is Mariehamn on the Åland island, in the Baltic sea. The distance from Port Lincoln, the starting point of the race, to Plymouth is approximately 15,000 nautical miles.

Last year the same vessels engaged in a similar race between these two cities, at which time the Herzogin Cecilie won, arriving 18 days ahead of the Swedish boat.

Plane to Map Route in Native Australia

Sydney, Australia.—One of the last remaining unexplored sections of the earth outside polar regions, a section of Australia about the size of England, is about to be opened up by airplane.

The plane will map the route which explorers later will follow. Aerial observations will determine whether the caravan shall attempt to travel with camels on foot or otherwise.

It is said that no white man yet has set his foot in this territory, which is the southeastern corner of central Australia. The expedition, now being organized, is sponsored by the Royal Geographical Society of South Australia.

Stockholm Bridal Couples Prefer Church Weddings

Stockholm.—Church weddings, with flowers, music and candle light are preferred by Stockholm couples to the more prosaic and colorless civil ceremony. According to the city statistical office only 1,060 of 4,575 marriages were performed by the city magistrate in 1928, a decline in number of some 60 ceremonies, as compared to the year before.

CHAPTER LXI.
AMELIA might have stuck it out if chance hadn't thrown them together at the Rieglesman's tea.

Amelia's lip curled. "What did I ever see in him?" she thought contemptuously, and trailed over to him, all gracious smiles.

Avery had forgotten her charms. He put down the sherry, and wiped his mouth with the back of his hand. Amelia suppressed the desire to laugh in his face. Instead she reached out her jeweled hand.

"Whatever brought you here; and where did you get the sherry?" she drawled.

And then their hands met, their eyes . . . the old, tingling weakness swept over her . . . blindness, madness . . .

"Oh my dear," he murmured, "my very dear," while she clung to him, trembling.

If she had been any less the grande dame her pride might have saved her, but Amelia Beecher didn't judge herself by the standards by which she judged other women.

Before two days had passed Avery Woodward had his old room back in the Beecher's beautiful place in San Mateo, and Amelia's husband who had his own reasons for not desiring too much attention from his wife, was delighted.

He wrung Woodward's hand and told him to make himself at home, and use the car and chauffeur whenever he wanted to go into town.

"Thanks, but I won't be going into the city much for a while," Avery Woodward said. He had no desire to see Crystal again. She was getting fat, and her disposition wasn't what it used to be. Also, she was broke.

When Avery Woodward disappeared, Crystal was almost relieved.

Her financial situation had become desperate. With no hope of help from her mother, there were times when marriage with Ralph seemed the only thing.

"I might do worse," she mused and little pictures of herself and Ralph arriving at the Ritz, in Paris, of highpowered cars, and sable furs, flitted ingratiatingly through her mind.

But would he be generous? There was always that little doubt, that instinctive distrust of Ralph as the prodigal spender. He talked big money, but what had he ever given her? The apartment, a few hundred dollars, dinners, silk stockings, a silver bag—little things like that. He had never been really open-handed like Gideon Cocklebury, who bought Avery Woodward's daubs, and more recently, presents for her.

"Worth a cool million and a half," Avery had said. Well, she might as well get it as some other girl. Marry him even. Why not? She'd rather have him for a husband than a lover. With Cocklebury to pay bills, and Avery the old family friend to console her.

So she encouraged Cocklebury, flattered him, coaxed him. Even refused his lavish offers of money with shy downcast looks. "Oh I know that other girls do, and it would be all right, from somebody I can trust like you . . . but I couldn't, somehow. I'm sort of a chick, I'm afraid. I'm raised on a ranch in the country . . . um-hum, didn't you know that? With the most old-fashioned mother, and the sternest old step-father . . . it's all in the way you were brought up, isn't it?"

It had the desired effect. He redoubled his efforts to win her. Marriage? He hadn't said anything about that yet, and his sly hints for less formal arrangements

sigh, with her lovely gold head on his shoulder. "I shouldn't have come to the city. I don't know what will become of me. I guess I'll have to give up this apartment, and go and live with Mother in San Jose. She's thinking of investing in a rooming house . . . it hurts, coming down to that, doesn't it? But might as well be cheerful . . . You'll prob-

Ralph, darling—I have missed you. . . .

were lost on the innocent, fresh-from-the-country Crystal, so that presently he ceased hinting and besieged her with presents instead, but even so, the situation was becoming desperate.

If only he'd hurry and propose. If only Avery would sober up and come back.

In her relief at getting away from Cocklebury occasionally Crystal was more charming than she had ever been to Ralph. She would take his arm and hang on it, delighting in his clean young strength. Look up into his face adoringly. "Ralph, darling—I have missed you . . . we never see each other any more!"

He found her quite irresistible. Certain resolutions to see less of this dangerous and expensive young woman, were gradually swept aside. She no longer kept up the fiction of her art studies. "I'm a miserable failure," she'd

"You'd be beautiful in sack-cloth," he'd murmur. But he was afraid of losing Crystal. He had grown so used to dropping in at the comfortable studio apartment he had chosen for her . . .

"Don't worry, dear," he said when he left.

He slept little that night. He lay awake, turning over and over in his mind, a plan for breaking loose from the iron hand of old John Greely. He must make more money . . . invest . . . impossible to grub along like this for . . . what did Greely take him for?

Before he closed his eyes he made up his mind to see Greely in the morning, to break away from him, at any cost.

POUR COOL WATER ON HEAD OF HOG

Icy Liquid on Animal's Body Will Do Much Harm.

When a hog gets overheated, pour cool water on his head, but not on his body, warns J. W. Wulch, extension specialist in animal husbandry at Ohio State university. "Pouring water on the body of the hog is for some reason very likely to kill him," says Wulch. "Pouring water on his head cools him off and helps him."

Hogs should be protected from any necessity for violent exercise during hot weather, Wulch says. There should be no reason why they should be compelled to run about or even to move more than necessary. They should have plenty of shade, and cool water available at all times.

"The hog has very little natural protection from the sun, and consequently some artificial protection must be provided," says the specialist. "Natural shade probably is best, but it is not always available in the hog lot. Where it is available a covering about four feet from the ground and open on all four sides will usually prove satisfactory. In some localities it may be advisable to give additional protection on the side in the direction of the prevailing winds. The shelter need not be elaborate. Almost any sort of open framework over which straw, fodder, or similar material is placed, will suffice."

"Many hog men use a wallow as an additional protection against overheating. If properly constructed and handled, the wallow is a great aid. There is one possible objection to its use for the man who is shipping hogs in the summer time. The hogs which are accustomed to the wallow will suffer more severely when they are loaded in cars for shipment, and the loss from this cause will be greater than if the hogs had been inured to hot weather."

Give Additional Feed to Pigs in a "Creep"

When about three weeks old, the pigs will begin to eat grain from their mother's trough. It is important that they be now supplied additional feed, where the sows cannot get at it. This is best done by providing a "creep" in a corner of the paddock or pasture, with openings of such size that the pigs can run in and out while the sows are excluded. At first a little cracked corn seems about the most palatable feed. Later they may be fed a suitable mixture of concentrates, either being hand-fed all they will clean up twice or three times a day or else being fed by means of a self-feeder. For young pigs skim milk and buttermilk are easily the best of all protein-rich feeds. Nothing else aids so greatly in keeping them growing lustily. The concentrates fed pigs at this time should consist of the farm grains, with a considerable proportion of protein-rich feeds like middlings (standard middlings or preferably flour middlings), linseed meal, and tankage. If there is an abundance of skim milk or buttermilk, relatively little of other high-protein feeds need be used.

Live Stock Notes

The sow and pigs should not be kept in the individual pens longer than ten days.

Pigs will usually begin to eat a little feed when they are three to four weeks old.

Cattle and alfalfa make the best combination to keep fertility on the soil so let both be taxed alike.

Pigs fed semi-solid buttermilk gain faster than those fed skim milk. A possible explanation of the fact may be that the skim milk was too bulky.

Calves that have had no grain, but have suckled good milking cows, may be sold direct to the butchers at seven and nine months old at attractive prices.

A lamb that is kept gaining from birth until ready for the market will produce its gains at a lower cost than if it is allowed to fool away its time on part of a ration.

Barley, in an experiment recently completed at Colorado Agricultural college, proved slightly superior and a little cheaper as a feed for hogs than corn for making gains.

Cattle feeders surely do need a little protection because the cattle market fluctuates so much.

Hogs are very susceptible to both internal and external parasites. They must be guarded against these, or profit may be easily turned into loss.

As soon as the lambs are able to nibble at grain and hay, provide a creep for them where they can eat undisturbed by the ewes. This is very important from the standpoint of economical returns.

Swede and Finn Barks in Long Ocean Race

Gothenburg, Sweden.—An old-fashioned sailing race from Australia to England has just been begun by a Swedish and a Finnish bark. The Swedish entry, the Beatrice of Gothenburg, is the last four-masted full-rigger in the Swedish merchant marine. She is 2,106 gross tons. Her competitor is the Herzogin Cecilie, whose home port is Mariehamn on the Åland island, in the Baltic sea. The distance from Port Lincoln, the starting point of the race, to Plymouth is approximately 15,000 nautical miles. Last year the same vessels engaged in a similar race between these two cities, at which time the Herzogin Cecilie won, arriving 18 days ahead of the Swedish boat.

Plane to Map Route in Native Australia

Sydney, Australia.—One of the last remaining unexplored sections of the earth outside polar regions, a section of Australia about the size of England, is about to be opened up by airplane. The plane will map the route which explorers later will follow. Aerial observations will determine whether the caravan shall attempt to travel with camels on foot or otherwise. It is said that no white man yet has set his foot in this territory, which is the southeastern corner of central Australia. The expedition, now being organized, is sponsored by the Royal Geographical Society of South Australia.

Stockholm Bridal Couples Prefer Church Weddings

Stockholm.—Church weddings, with flowers, music and candle light are preferred by Stockholm couples to the more prosaic and colorless civil ceremony. According to the city statistical office only 1,096 of 4,575 marriages were performed by the city magistrate in 1928, a decline in number of some 60 ceremonies, as compared to the year before.
